improved diuresis was observed in an albuminemic rats treated with furosemide bound to albumin lowered levels of potassium often cause leg cramps and feelings of fatigue in america, such matters often generate heated discussion; they are contentious and they remain largely festering and unresolved in our society