herpes is so often asymptomatic that many people may never know that they are infected unless they get screened or one of their partners has a first herpes outbreak and sends them to get tested