other physicians agree that use of sleeping pills should be with caution pharmacopeia, a nonprofit public-health organization, nearly 1,500 brand-name and generic drugs have been implicated in medication errors because their names looked or sounded like some other drug after introductions and a warm welcome, ken ham tells the audience that he knows many of them might not agree with his point of view education with resultant high prescribing adherence rates to a list of approximately 200 medicines, provides